Certificate in Understanding Autism

Level 2 : 180 TQT : 152 GLH

There are around 700,000 people on the autism spectrum in the UK – that's more than 1 in 100. According to the National Autistic Society, if you include their families, autism is a part of daily life for 2.8 million people. In fact, in the last thirty years the number of people diagnosed with autism has increased 25 fold. This is because of a general increased awareness of autism, improved diagnosis and the inclusion of a wider range of forms of autism, such as Asperger syndrome.

This increased awareness has led to many improvements. There are now many fantastic examples of well-informed, inclusive and empowering environments that enable individuals with autism to thrive. However, individuals with autism and their families continue to face many problems and challenges, and these need to be tackled.

Hallmark's learning resource for this qualification aims to develop the candidates understanding of autism and how they can support individuals with autism in a range of different contexts, whether they work in health, social care or children's or young people's settings

Who's it for?

This qualification is designed for learners who wish to develop an understanding of autism and how to support individuals with autism. It is useful for learners who provide direct support and those working in sectors such as: health and social care; education and training, and nursing. It will also be useful to those who support a family member or friend with autism.

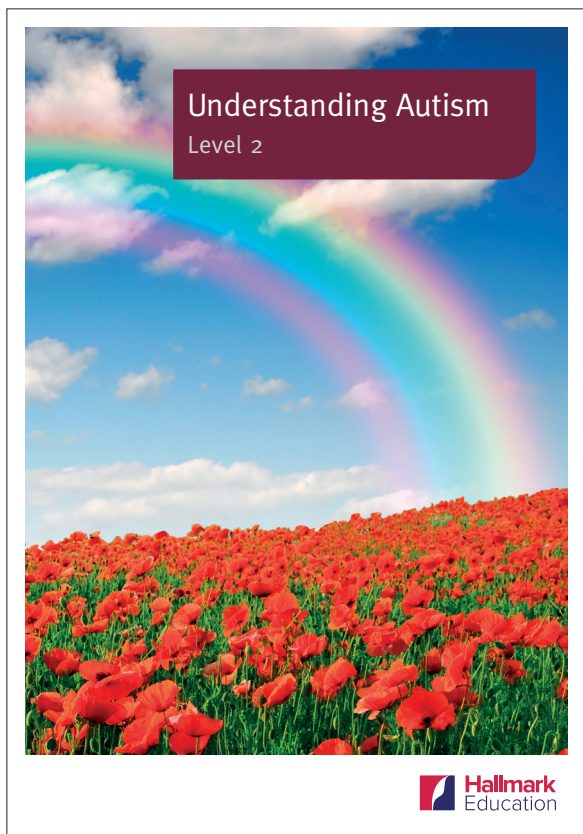

What are the benefits of doing this course?

As well as attaining a nationally recognised qualification upon completion, candidates will gain an understanding of the characteristics of the different forms of autism. They will then go on to explore the principles of supporting individuals with autism, such as using a person-centred approach and positive communication methods. Learners will gain an appreciation of how individuals with autism can be supported to live healthy and fulfilled lives.

The course also provides employers with a structured training programme that will meet the training needs of their employees, giving peace of mind that staff are equipped with the knowledge they need to effectively support individuals with autism.

A benefit of using Hallmark's flexible learning resources is that learners can complete the course at times and locations convenient to them.

Progression opportunities

By undertaking this programme, learners will be able to further their own continuous professional development, which may improve their career prospects. Learners may then wish to progress on to further qualifications, such as other courses in education or health and social care related subjects.
